

TUSHAR TAYAL &lt;tushar68053@gmail.com&gt;

Soulmates

2 messages

Tushar Raven's Newsletter <tushar_raven@getrevue.co>

Sun, Sep 12, 2021 at 10:00 AM

Reply-To: tushar68053@gmail.com

To: tushar68053@gmail.com

Tushar Raven's Newsletter

@tushar_raven

In this newsletter, I will give you a creative tool that I use sometimes to be a little more creative and weird at times.

Thinking the Impossible

I think most of my creative ideas comes to me when I overthink:

1. My brain is running at least five different thoughts at the same time that somehow connects in a good way at times.
2. And sometimes overthinking takes me down a weird path; thinking about "what if I am a God, I haven't realised it yet and I will discover about it in some special place" is not good or is it?

You can also notice that both creativity and overthinking comes to us in the most boring of times, and that's why I tweeted:

Tushar Tayal 🎤

@tushar_raven

Overthinking and Creativity Goes Hand In Hand.

7:40 PM - 12 Aug 2021

After reading Brida by Paulo Coelho, I was overthinking about Soulmates the other day and I came up with this:

I can't really believe in Soulmates but there is something so beautiful and meaningful about just meeting a random stranger, at the right time, at the right age, at the right place, in the right circumstance and then living your life together.

P.S: Not entirely original, but what actually is :-)

This paragraph was not possible without overthinking a topic I can't even believe in, and that is why I want you to think or maybe even overthink about some impossible things sometimes, and this thinking will be reflected creatively in your work later on.

You can think about Aliens, a planet with a single gender, or maybe what will happen if Sharukh Khan proposed to you today, as long as you are not becoming a conspiracy theorist just go to any lengths.

The goal is to think outside the box for some time and use this overthinking for our own advantage.

Few Examples:

I see remnants of this thinking in my work later on like this:

1. Patriarchy is like aliens for people outside social media, It doesn't exist.
2. That girl might even reject Sharukh Khan in this much confusion.
3. I didn't ask Aliens to leave such a weird weather this morning.

In this way, you will never run out of some creative ideas for a long long time, and it is actually better than overthinking about our doomed and lonely life at midnight for no good reason.

Just kidding or Am I??

If you find this Newsletter worth reading, You can either share or support me by Clicking here or You can do both :-)

I actually got inspired from my own podcast to write this newsletter, So here is the link: